Description Two large Peppercorn trees remain at the rear of the Raymond Street shops (opposite Armadale). Recent landscaping work has created a pleasant space around these trees within the car park.

The trees appear to be in good condition.

Local significance

Final Recommendation

Statement of significance Two Peppercorn trees which contribute to the heritage of Sale as a rare indicator of the earlier uses of the land to the rear of the Raymond Street shops, and as one of few remaining early plantings within the town centre. Creation of a park setting has emphasised the landmark qualities of this planting.(RNE criteria B.2, E.1)
